

April 1, 2024

T.S. Eliot suggests that “April is a time of renewal and new beginnings, making it the most compassionate and gentle month of the year.” This quote emphasizes the optimism and positivity associated with April.

April 1, in many Western countries is traditionally an occasion for playing tricks. This custom has been observed for hundreds of years, but its origin is unknown. Jokesters often expose their actions by shouting "April Fools!" at the recipient. Mass media can be involved with these pranks, revealed as such the following day.

Some of the best April Fool’s pranks of all time include:

In France: According to Le Parisien, in 1986, the Eiffel Tower was going to be dismantled and rebuilt inside the new Euro Disney Park.

In Denmark: In 1965, a Copenhagen newspaper reported that Parliament had passed a law that all dogs be painted white to improve road safety because they could then be seen clearly at night.

In Canada: In 2008, WestJet airlines advertised its overhead cabin bins as “among the most spacious of any airline” and said it would charge passengers an extra $12 to use these “sleeper cabins.”

In Great Britain: In 1980, the BBC announced that Big Ben, London’s historic clock tower, would undergo a face-lift and become digital to keep up with the times. Enraged callers flooded the station with complaints.

Left-handed toilet paper-Why should right-handers be closer to cleanliness? In 2015, Cottonelle tweeted that it was introducing left-handed toilet paper for all those southpaws out there.

A solar eclipse occurs when the Moon passes between the Earth and the Sun, casting its shadow on the Earth. A total solar eclipse, like the one that will occur on April 8th, 2024, occurs when the Moon completely blocks out the Sun's light and causes night-like darkness during the day on a very slim sliver of the Earth's surface.

This sliver is also known as the path of totality. Notable cities in the path of totality include Kingston, Montréal, Niagara Falls, Hamilton, and more. Other major cities however, are not in the path of totality. People in these cities will still see most of the eclipse, but will miss the incredible spectacle of absolute totality.

To prevent serious eye damage, always avoid direct eye contact with the Sun, especially during a solar eclipse. Use special glasses with eclipse filters, as regular sunglasses won't offer sufficient protection. Prioritize your eye health while enjoying the beautiful spectacle of a solar eclipse.

MOMENT IN HISTORY #3 - CELEBRATING 30 YEARS of SLR

The following is a piece about Pat Gilpin, a long-standing SLR member, that the 30th Anniversary Committee has submitted.

A Chat with Pat

“I learned so much and I loved every minute of it”. So said Pat Gilpin when we sat down to talk about her long-standing membership of SLR. Pat loves doing the research for a study group and often spends many hours delving deeply into her subject. Her favourites are the art courses, but she also likes the current events discussion groups. Pat still remembers many interesting presentations that she heard and made over the years, such as one on the colour mauve and another one on children’s books. She still has copies of all of them in a folder.

Pat, a retired teacher, learned about WSLR (Western Society for Learning in Retirement) through an advert in the Western Alumni Newspaper. The organization was then one year old and Pat has been a continuous member, except for one year, ever since. The atmosphere was more ad hoc, informal and relaxed at the beginning. Although the founding members were men, most of the members were women who filled the classes and many volunteered, in turn, to be moderators. Pat was the curriculum person 3 times in 4 years.

Art classes, Pat’s favourites, were helped initially by Western’s Art department library and Pat was a frequent moderator, going in early to get the slides for the presentations. Much better than Power Point she thinks! Over the years Pat specialized in the Impressionists and enjoyed many art classes with her friends.

“I made so many friends and had so much fun,” says Pat. The handout of phone numbers distributed at the start of each class enabled the participants to connect easily with each other and many became close friends. Pat and her SLR friends even travelled together to Europe, Pennsylvania and Newfoundland. Others also formed an opera group and several book clubs.

Congratulations on longevity in SLR, Pat! Although Pat has not joined any classes in the recent months, she plans to come back. We look forwards to seeing you amongst us again soon, Pat.
